Germans In Daring Thrust At Convoy Near Irish Coast

British Report Shooting Down 28 Raiders And Driving Off Nazi Mosquito Boats As Channel Warfare Continues

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, July 26.-German bombers made a daring thrust at Britain's "back door" today by attacking a convoy off the north Irish coasts. Others kept up the continual battle for control of the English channel by striking again at the southeast coastal towns.

Observers heard heavy gunfire and saw flashes of ships' guns as he British replied to the attack on the convoy off the north Irish coast the first made in that area since the start of the war.

British planes streaked out to engage the Germans, and soon one comper was seen to fall. Early reports indicated the southeast coast attacks were not as

HOW TO FINANCE A WAR

Interest in Britain's despera'e war financing isn' wholly academic. Americans are saying to themselves, "There, but for the Grace of God go we." In the years to come they will be wrestling with the same knotty problems anyway; their defense program ul imately will approach the cost of Britain's present climactic effort.

The British supplemental budget submitted last Tuesday calls for expenditure of about 60 percent of the national income. In the United States that would mean approximately $42,000,000,000. Defense costs, similar budgetary dislocation here

It must be noted in what is visible about the British predicament that the problem isn't how to raise have been exhausted. The wealthy are following the dodo into extinction. The profiteer has been dis- to Middlebranch cemetery. patched to never-never land. Earnings which would barely sustain life on a subsistence level in the Unitfor even heavier taxes on them. John Maynard on the porch Keynes, the British economist, has proposed a plan whereby wage earners would be relieved of a percentage of their incomes, part of which would be collected as a tax, part of which would be credited to the individual as a savings deposit drawing interest, like old age security payments in the United States. Thus, a wartime boom out of increased earnings Coal Co., of Cleveland. would be discouraged and a cushion prepared against a post-war depression.

The United States, though not considering itself hard-pressed, eventually will have to devise new plans and concepts of taxation to suit a world in which almost certainly the high cost of war will be a primary factor in all public affairs for years to come. only a foretaste of what will come in 1941 and thereafter. The entire tax system will have to be shaken up to adjust it to the burdens it must carry.

A favorable effect on popular morale could be achieved at this time in the United States by starting the long-needed reorganization of the public finance system-or lack of system. Government income must be increased; there is no argument. Government expense, other than the unusual item of defense, must be curtailed; there is no argumentonly an unexplained refusal to do anything about it

INDISPENSABLE?

Long age, when there still was doubt of a war crisis furnishing an excuse for a third term nomination. New Dealers said they could talk down the antithird term tradition. They drafted Mr. Roosevelt long before the Democrats finally got around to it. It is interesting to note now what the confident orators must batter down to carry the argument.

President Roosevelt and his spokesmen have raised up a proposition that the present chief executive and his governing group are indispensable to the welfare and safety of the United States.

This calls for the rebuttal that no chief executive, Leroy Bates motored to Nelson's ledges yesterday. no governing group ever is indispensable. To win the election, third term apologists must prove the re- and Mrs. Frank Lutz motored to Maximo Sunday to buttal is wrong.

Cotton Mill Workers Get Farms Through "Co. Plan"

SYLACAUGA, Ala., July 26.-A combination of industry and agriculture is being given a real test at the big Avondale cotton mill here and six other points. Low-interest loans by the management have made possible the purchase of small farm plots and the building of homes by 175 mill In a pinch, the farms, ranging in size from six to 100 acres, could produce virtually all of the food their owners need. They now produce most of it.

Newest Invention Also Would Be Welcomed On Cold Night

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

SEATTLE, July 26.-Invention of an air-conditioned bed was anents an hour with a daily mini- nounced today at the University of Washington.

The bed warms a person in winter and cools him in summer. He dials his own weather for the night department store shops, objected with a knob at the head of the bed. An air cushion under him and a new form of air blanket over him makes this possible. The air-cushion affords furthermore, another easily installed possibility. If father won't get up when called, mother downstairs may press a button, and plop goes father's air-cushion.

The inventor, Dr. F. K. Kirsten, famous aeronautical engineer, estimates that the new bed can be and an electric heating tube in the box warms the air. If cooling is wanted, it is only necessary to turn down the heater, for the air always comes into the box cooled automatically by expansion.

A single special cover goes over the sleeper. It is a hollow blanket. Air from the bed below passes through fine tubes into the foot of this blanket and rolls forward inside the fabric to exit around the is as devoid of red tape as a field of potatoes. Any employe may apply, and if the title to the land is clear and the worker's record is good, the money is available almost immediately. Low Interest Rate

The interest rate is four per cent, with deductions made from the semi-monthly pay checks. In emergency cases, deductions are suspended until conditions improve. Payments on the average loan of about $750 to $1,000 are $15 per month. Not a single home has been foreclosel since the plan was started on an experimental basis eight years ago. In that time, 114 families have completed payment.

No government money is involved. No banker has anything to do with the plan and the Comer mill interests do not even have a separate corporation for handling

Social-minded Donald Comer. head of the Avondale chain, instituted the loan plan at his mills in Sylacauga, Pell City, Alexander City, Sycamore, Stevenson and La-Fayette, with some few loans in Birmingham, where distances from the mill and scarcity of suitable farm land make the program more difficult for operation

A visit to the mill workers' bomes in the Sylacauga area reveals their advantages over average rural homes. Most of them have electric ranges, electric refrigerators, washing machines and telephones.

Water is more of a problem, but automatic pumps have removed most of the drudgery.

Mill executives believe the farm program will create a "cushion" for workers during slack periods, besides improving their standards

It also stabilizes the labor supply, since few workers will leave their own places even in times of lar are quoted here: "You recently received the announcement of a new chain super-market in our city, announcing its policy of 'Greatest Good for the Greatest Number.' You are asked to exchange the friendly, efficient services of trained clerks for the nervous wear and tear of piling up one's own order amid the confusion and competition of other strugglin women. You are asked to replace trained clerks work and time with your work and time and to replace a delivery car's gas and oil with your own gas and oil. You are asked to become a partner with the company in throwing scores of trained clerks on relief — men who, through efficient service, may be friends of yours—friends you've dealt with every day for years. You are asked, as a taxpayer, to pay the full cost of supporting these men or relief. You are asked to buy your own husband out of his job. Why? Simply because any move which liquidates men also liquidates the buying power of those men. Such men are no longer customers for the things our husbands make and sell! "You are asked to become a partner of a concern which cuts its service to you by 70 per cent. Asks you to de the work, tosses its man-power on your relief rolls, moves to lower the purchasing power of Westchester by the amount of its payrell cut. Remember, you had not the slightest voice or vote in this move! The time, the work, the service loss, the gas and oil cost, the higher relief tax all are yours. Yet you have neither rights nor representation of either decision or veto when a large concern moves against the best interests of a community. To clarify our stand on this memorandum, may we say that none responsible for it has any connection whatsoever with the company, its present or fermer employes, or competing concerns. We have simply watched men who have served us faithfully for years suddenly liquidated. And we refuse to be a partner to such a move for reasons given. "If the above information makes sense to you why not discuss it at your club or with friends? If you believe it worth passing on, additional copies of this memo are available. Just phone — "WOMEN'S CONSUMERS COMMITTEE

With Nats For Recent Setbacks

CLEVELAND, July 26. - The Cleveland Indians started a scoresettling stretch today as the Washington Senators—the club that shunted them into a six-game losing streak on their last eastern trip-came to town. Bob Feller forgot about a cracked tooth long enough to take the mound in the opener of a fourgame series with the Nats. He was opposed by Rene Monteagudo, Cuban southpaw. Feller, hit on the jaw by a sandlotter's throw, will see his dentist tomorrow for extraction of the tooth. The Indians worked desperately to catch up with the Philadelphia Athletics yesterday after spotting them seven rums in five innings. The eight-team Church league and just missed—the A's winning lettering at the top. It read:

CASA LINDA DEVELOPMENT | gan" Housing Plan in One-Family Units. Submitted by STEVEN HUBBARD

Linda stared blankly at the paper without understanding. There were row upon row of neat little bungalows, staggered in location to conserve space without losing artistic arrangement. Each bungalow had a flagstone walk in the midst of shrub-dotted lawns, each had its complement of palms and shade

Linda's glance sped from the large drawing, quickly past the pile of blueprints, and came to rest on a color sketch of one of the model bungalows in elevation. That she could appreciate.

It was a perfect little livable home, a bride's bungalow, if there ever was one.

"Like it?" Steve asked.
"Like it" she echoed. "Why, Steve, it's adorable.

So THAT'S why he could draw gingerbread houses and fairy cas-tles for Mickey? So that's why this garageman had hands with long, artistic fingers. He drew dream houses that people could live in. "Come, young man," Linda said.

'You've been holding out on us. What's it all about?' And then Steve told her. All about his hopes and dreams, his years of studying architecture nights, while he worked days to earn his living . How Timothy Pflueger, the noted who planned buildings like Titan Tower, had seen some-thing in Steve's work, had given him a helping hand, technical pointers and all the assistance that Steve sought. And, modestly, how Pflueger predicted big things for Hubbard some day as an architect.

Steve's expression, "my building", was no longer a hollow phrase to Linda. It meant everything to Steve that some day he, too, would be able to look up at a building like Titan Tower as his own work. Now, it meant something to Linda, too.

"The name just seemed to fit, somehow," Steve explained. "Casa Linda—pretty house, in Spanish Apd with your name I know I have luck on my side. How can I lose?" "You can't, Steven, you're not the kind that loses," Aunt Cynthia said.

"I wanted to help him, Linda: I wanted to give him money so he could study—money that's no good to me and that I can't take with invitation.
me. But the boy's too stubborn—it's And the an old Hubbard failing. He wanted to make good on his own-and he

"They're beautiful houses," she added, "aren't they, Linda?"
"Beautiful," Linda said, softly.

But she wasn't looking at the drawings. She was looking at a pair of sightless eyes and she was thinking of something she had heard termed "blind faith".

For the next several weeks, after the dinner at Steve's home, Linda had two men on her mind-two men and a boy. Her thoughts were divided between those for Dr. Bill Blaine, who was his old charming self after that one night of moodiness, and for the success of Steve's chance of winning the national competition with his entry of the "Cas Linda" housing plan.

She and Steve, Linda told herself, were now great friends—nothing more—and she took a sisterly interest in his progress in architec ture. He wasn't any longer the fresh young man of the roof-top meeting but he was Mickey's steadfast friend, and Linda's, too . Her permission for the use of her name .the "big favor" which Steve Despite Bill's urging, she had begged off from giving a definite answer. He said he would wait, but he hoped she'd say yes.

It was the first overture Bill had made toward having Linda meet any of his family, and Linda thought the opportunity was too good to miss

Merry will be there, will she? I wonder, Linda thought, if Miss Meredith Blaine will be any more cordial to little Linda than she was the day they first met, through Mr. Avon, in the sandwich shop? "How DO you do, Miss Morton?"

Merry had said. Well, Linda would make Merry like her-or else.

On the other hand, the small voice of conscience said, what about Mickey, if you decided to ditch him and go society? Who'll take Mickey on his vacation? If it had not been for that question, which she could not put from her mind, no matte how hard she tried, Linda would have said yes immediately to Bill's And then, one day, Linda had decided to take her problem to Mr. Avon, her fatherly advisor, as she had before, when she was sorely put for an answer.
